The Impact of Social Sector Expenditure on Economic Growth in India: An Empirical Investigation

Nilakshi Gogoi

Abstract: The main objective of this study is to examine the impact of social sector expenditure on economic growth in India. The study is primarily based on secondary data and the data for this paper covers a period from 1980-81 to 2018-19. The present study used the simple linear regression model with Per Capita Gross Domestic Product as the dependent variable and the total social sector expenditure as the independent variable. The results show that there exists a high positive correlation between social sector expenditure and economic growth of the country and also that social sector expenditure has a positive impact on the economic growth of India.

Key Words: Per Capita GDP, Social sector expenditure, Economic Growth, India.

1. Introduction

Human capital is critically interlinked with economic growth, with education and health considered as its major components. The investment in human capital makes the labour force to be more productive, healthy, competitive and more efficient, and all these together leads to higher economic growth. Considering the importance of human capital, there is a greater emphasis on investment in human capital with the objective of improving life expectancy, ensuring the availability of human capital with appropriate skill sets in order to support business activity while in that process also helping to develop innovative capacity and entrepreneurship in an economy.

Social sector expenditure is a part of public expenditure which includes the expenditure on health, education, social security & welfare, water supply and sanitation, the welfare of SCs, STs & OBCs etc. The expenditure incurred for the social sector development plays a very important role in the functions of an economy at all stages of economic development. Moreover, the intervention by the states with the help of social welfare policies has a very significant impact on the performance of an economy (Omoke,

INTERNET AND THE QUESTION OF HUMAN IDENTITY

A Philosophical Analysis

- *Dr. Minakshi Das*Asstt. Professor, Deptt. of Philosophy
North-Kamrup College, Baghmara

Abstract

Who am 1?" is a question that has been pondered, no doubt by all of us at some point, perhaps at many and various points, in our lives. The fastest development of social networking sites like Facebook, Twitter and on-line gaming are changing the whole world by altering people's view of who they are and their place in the world. We are now prepared to adopt an almost disembodied knower and performer status in our day to day interaction in a virtual world that leaves its deeper impact in our embodied performance in the real world. This is how we become a dual person with both physical and virtual identity? Do they compatible with the real person? We live in a shared world with others; we are not capable to define our position without some relations, properties and some sort of roles. In this background the article will seek to explore how intermet is trying to redefine human identity by creating a complete different world.

GENDER DISPARITY AND WOMEN EMPOWERMENT:

A brief study in the context of Assam

Pankaj Kalita,
 Asst. Prof. Deptt. of Pol. Science.
 N.K. College, Baghmara

1. Introduction:

Assam is one of India's eight northeastern states. In terms of people, it is the largest state in the region, and in terms of geographical size, it is second only to Arunachal Pradesh. Despite its abundant natural riches and cultural heritage, the state lags behind the rest of the country. Overall development has been hampered by the state's socioeconomic structure. Because it is a multiethnic state with a diverse cultural heritage, it has been plagued by insurgency and ethnic strife for the past three decades, threatening not only its economy but also its social fabric. Women are the worst victims of this practise.

Despite the fact that the entire region, including Assam, is free of societal evils such as dowry, sati pratha, female feticide, and infanticide due to the prevalence of tribal and indigenous culture, other types of gender discrimination occur, as indicated by different gender gap studies. Contrary to popular belief, women in Assam face the same disadvantages as women in the rest of the country.

AN OUTLOOK TO THE CHIEFTAINSHIP IN THADOU-KUKI SOCIETY

Mary Hangshing
 Assistant Professor
 Deptt. of Philosophy

 North Kamrup College, Baghmara

Abstract

Throughout the early stages of tribal societies, the concept of Chieftainship evolved within a village. This institution of Chieftainship has a well-defined socio-economic and political-administrative framework. Since time immemorial, Chieftainship has been a fundamental aspect of social and political life among the Thadou-Kuki, just as it has been in every other tribal culture. Though the Village Authority Act has supplanted Chieftainship in many tribal areas. However Chieftainship remains the exclusive form of village administration among the Thadou-Kukis. As a result, the settlement became the Thadou-Kuki' social centre. This system of administration is locally called "Kho Ki-Vaipoh" (village administration) headed by Haosa (Village Chief), which is a hereditary system. This paper attempts to highlight the traditional Thadou-Kuki Chieftainship, and the path ahead in today's world. The present study is cross-sectional and analytical in nature, drawing on the ethnographic

EDUCATION AND COVID-19 PANDEMIC

(An overview of the scenario, students affected at different levels of education, constructive suggestions for the present & future)

Bandana Gogoi Acaleum: Professor, Department of Education, North Kamrup College

Introduction
Corona virus disease (COVID-19) is an infectious disease caused by a newly discovered corona virus. Most people infected with the COVID-19 virus will experience mild to moderate respiratory illness and recover without requiring special treatment. Older people, and those with underlying medical problems like cardiovascular disease, diabetes, chronic respiratory disease and cancer are more likely to develop serious illness.

The best way to prevent and slow down transmission is be well informed about the COVID-19 virus, the disease it causes and how it spreads, be can protect ourselves by washing hands frequently and using an alcohol based rub and also by not touching our face. We must also make others aware of all these to stop the virus from spreading more. The virus spreads primarily through droplets of saliva or discharge from the nose when an infected person coughs and sneezes, so it is very important that everyone practice respiratory etiquette which is a must in such a situation now. The incubation period of COVID-19 is hought to be between one and 14 days. It is contagious before thought to be between one and 14 days. It is contagious before symptoms appear, which is why many people get infected. Infected patients can also be asymptomatic despite having virus in their system. At this time, there are no specific vuccines or treatments for COVID-19. However, there are many ongoing clinical trials evaluating potential
